

Independent Publisher
of
Quality Technical Nonfiction

Archer Enterprises

2924 Ferguson Crs. Rd.
Geneva, NY 14456
585-526-5350 / 526-5936 fax

Custom Engineering Design and Consultation Services

The essay "Our Many Roads to the Stars" by Poul Anderson was included as an 'Afterword' in the very influential 1976 sci-fi anthology Faster than Light, which is comprised solely of excellent multi-genre science fiction and speculation that's specifically devoted to interstellar propulsion and travel - contributed by such notables as Isaac Asimov, Arthur C. Clarke, Gregory Benford, and many others. It may still be available from Amazon.com, and makes a great addition to any library.

Faster than Light

Editors: Jack Dann & George Zebrowski

copyright: 1976 by the editors

publisher: Harper & Row, Inc. (hardcover)

1st ACE Book paperback edition printed March 1982, by arrangement [ISBN 0-441-22825-9].

Introduction: Dreaming Again

- There Was a Young Lady Named Bright (poem), by E. Reginald Buller

- 'To Suggest New Paradigms' (quotation), by James Blish

ISAAC ASIMOV

The Ultimate Speed Limit (essay/article)

ARTHUR C. CLARKE

Possible, That's All! (essay/article)

KEITH LAUMER

The Limiting Velocity of Orthodoxy (essay/article)

BEN BOVA

But What If We Tried It? (essay/article)

A. A. JACKSON IV & HOWARD WALDROP

Sun Up (short story)

POUL ANDERSON

Dialogue (novelette)

HAL CLEMENT

Longline (novelette)

HARLAN ELLISON

Phoenix Without Ashes (short fiction)

IAN WATSON

The Event Horizon (novelette)

GEORGE R. R. MARTIN

Nor the Many-Colored Fires of a Star Ring (novelette)

CHELSEA QUINN YARBRO

Dead in Irons (novelette)

GREGORY BENFORD

Seascape [ref. Pebble Among the Stars] (novelette)

GEORGE R. R. MARTIN

Fast-Friend (novelette)

- Hyperspace (poem), by Dick Allen

Afterword:

POUL ANDERSON

Our Many Roads to the Stars (essay)

A Selected Bibliography:

Interstellar Travel (novels, stories, nonfiction, articles)